Dear Captain Sarita,

This is with reference to your approved letter of intent requesting our NORSU College of Criminal Justice Education Professors for the possibility of conducting the Community Extension Project to your Barangay Peace and Order Committee on matters pertaining to Law Enforcement, Investigation and Intelligence with Crime Mapping, First Aid and Water Survival, and Self-Defense (Martial Arts).

Terminal Report: Community Extension Program in Barangay Puhagan, Valencia, Negros Oriental

This Terminal Report details the successful implementation of the Community Crime Prevention and Control Program in Barangay Puhagan, Valencia, Negros Oriental. The core objective of this extension initiative was to proactively address the underlying causes of crime and bolster community preparedness against both criminal activity and natural disasters. This was achieved by equipping local safety officers and community members with essential knowledge and practical skills necessary for effective crime prevention, control, and response. The project represents a significant commitment by the College of Criminal Justice Education (CCJE) to fulfill its mandate of public service and community engagement.

The College of Criminal Justice Education (CCJE), in collaboration with the Office of Research Extension and International Linkages (REXIL) of Negros Oriental State University (NORSU), launched this vital Community Extension Program. The formal commencement and launching date of the project was marked by the signing of a Memorandum of Agreement (MOA) between NORSU CCJE and Barangay Puhagan on August 30, 2019. This agreement solidified the partnership and paved the way for the scheduled activities. While the initial planning phase involved Barangay Palinpinon, the focused implementation and completion were successfully carried out in Barangay Puhagan, underscoring the adaptability and commitment of the CCJE team.

The program's delivery methodology was designed to maximize community participation, primarily targeting Barangay Public Safety Officers (BPSO), Barangay Crime Watch volunteers, and Barangay Auxiliary Police (BAP). Recognizing that most participants had weekday commitments, all training services, which included lectures and actual demonstrations, were conveniently scheduled and rendered exclusively on Sundays. This strategic scheduling ensured a high attendance rate and greater absorption of the training material by the barangay personnel who are critical to local peace and order.

The content of the extension program was multifaceted and tailored to meet the dual challenges of crime and disaster management. The curriculum focused heavily on Community Crime/Disaster Prevention and Control, delivered through expert lectures facilitated by CCJE Faculty Trainors. A key component of the input activities involved a blended approach: mornings were dedicated to theoretical lectures, while the afternoons shifted to practical, hands-on sessions. These afternoon demonstrations included crucial training in Self-Defense techniques, specifically for the Barangay Tanod, BPSO, and BAP participants, ensuring they were physically prepared to handle potentially volatile situations.

Furthermore, the program strategically involved Student Interns (OJT students) from the College of Criminal Justice Education. These students played a critical supporting role, assisting the professional lecturers and facilitating the actual practical training sessions for the barangay safety personnel. This involvement provided the student interns with invaluable real-world experience in community outreach, practical criminology, and public safety instruction, thereby serving as a valuable component of their professional development while simultaneously enhancing the quality and scale of the services delivered to the community.

The College's motivation for conducting this extension program goes beyond mere academic outreach; it is firmly rooted in national policy and social responsibility. The initiative aligns directly with the administration's focus on promoting Social Security, Peace, and Strong Institutions, as outlined in President Rodrigo Duterte's 10-point Socio-Economic Agenda. By bolstering the capabilities of local safety forces, the College effectively supports the efforts of the local police and contributes to overall community resilience and stability.

Finally, the College took a proactive stance in disaster preparedness by integrating modules on water safety and rescue. This initiative was conducted in direct implementation of the provisions of Republic Act 10121, also known as the Philippine Disaster Risk Reduction and Management Act of 2010. By complementing state programs with targeted training, the CCJE reinforced the barangay's capacity for disaster resilience and response. The entire extension program for Barangay Puhagan, Valencia, was successfully completed within the month of December 2019, signifying a major accomplishment in the College's commitment to community welfare

Terminal Report (Barangay Palinpinon, Valencia, Negros Oriental)

I. PROJECT DESCRIPTION

Despite the significant increase of crime committed in recent years, most of the responsibility for crime control rests at the National and local levels of government. The national and local governments do most of the criminal justice work and spend most of the criminal justice agencies specifically the law enforcement agencies such as PNP, NBI, PDEA and others. Additionally, A key role of the Institution like the College of Criminal Justice Education (CCJE) of Negros Oriental State University (NORSU), by its faculty commits to community involvement that is to provide leadership and support to these efforts in order to further develop the local or barangay capacity to prevent and control crime and administer justice fairly and effectively. The essence of community crime prevention and control program was to address the causes of crime and apprehending the suspected law violators.

The College of Criminal Justice Education (CCJE) with the Office of Research Extension and International Linkages (REXIL) through the office of the Extension Director of Negros Oriental State University (NORSU) conducted a Community Extension Program at Barangay Palinpinon, Valencia just completed last May 22, 2022. The services rendered by the College was in a form of lectures and actual demonstration/martial arts training during SUNDAYS only considering that most of the participants are available only within that day. These lectures on Community Crime/Disaster Prevention and Control as delivered by CCJE Faculty would seek to educate the barangay through their Barangay Public Safety Officers (BPSO) and among others who are interested to receive our extension program. Moreover, it is also designed to help them in coping up the problem of crimes and natural disasters and calamities.

With this, last February 17, 2022 (Thursday) was the MOA signing and Launching of the Extension Program between the College of Criminal Justice Education (CCJE) spearheaded by Dean, Jose Rene A. Cepe, together with REXIL through the office of Extension Director of Negros Oriental State University and Barangay Palinpinon Valencia, represented by their Barangay Captain Carlos Gainzan, Councilors and BPSO as the main participants of the said extension activity.

The extension program for Barangay Palinpinon, Valencia by its input of activities is just a duplicate of what has been provided in Barangay Puhagan of the same locality initiated last 2019. The formal sequence of activity, there will be lectures in the morning to be facilitated by CCJE Trainors/Lecturers then in the afternoon is the actual demonstration in Self-Defense for our BPSO participants. In the same manner, some Intern or OJT students from the College are involved to assist the Professional Lecturers and in the actual training of the said mentioned participants.

Moreover, the college felt the need to conduct this extension program aside from helping our local police in adherence to Former President Rodrigo Duterte's 10-point Socio-Economic Agenda that includes the promotion of Social Security. Likewise, the College makes its own initiative in the implementation of the provisions of RA 101211, otherwise known as the Philippine Disaster Risk Reduction and Management Act of 2010 by conducting Water Safety and Rescue Training to compliment the state's programs geared towards making the barangay disaster resilient.
